Abstract: The catering industry has been facing new trends that can also have some negative effects. Virtual reality tours, digital room keys, mobile check-in and check-out, and other features are some of the main benefits of applying science to the sector. The hotels have implemented creative procedures to track and manage occupancy. Also, visitors may now book and reserve the business's services well in advance thanks to the usage of media applications. This has made the sector more cost-effective by reducing resource waste because human mistake is reduced while utilizing the technology.
