

Impact of Ecological Calamity on Green Environment

Dr. Poonam Gaur¹ and Mr. Deepak Kumar²

Associate Professor, Lingaya's Vidyapeeth, Faridabad, India¹

Assistant Professor, Lingaya's Vidyapeeth, Faridabad, India²

Abstract: Natural and man-made calamities that cause harm to the environment include wildfires, landslides, floods, earthquakes, tsunamis, volcanic eruptions, and transportation accidents. Human impact, such as pollution, deforestation, and overpopulation, is the primary cause of ecological calamities. Green environment represents sustainability which supports the current generation for an extended length of time while maintaining a balance between environmental preservation, economic growth, and social progress, all without jeopardizing the needs of future

Keywords: Calamities