

Analyzing Returns from Dividend Investments in Wipro

Nidhi, Mohammed Farhan, Mohammed Imran, Ms. Syeda Tasmiya

Final Year Bachelor of Commerce
School of Economics and Commerce,
CMR University, Bangalore, India

Abstract: This report presents an examination of the profits got from profit interests in Wipro Restricted, a main worldwide data innovation administrations organization. The exploration investigates authentic profit execution, stock returns, monetary measurements, and pivotal contemplations for financial backers. The goal is to give significant bits of knowledge into the likely advantages and dangers related with profit putting resources into Wipro. Key perspectives shrouded in the examination incorporate profit yield, development, and security, as well as the absolute return produced from joining profits and capital appreciation. Moreover, the report underscores the significance of enhancement, embracing a drawn out viewpoint, grasping expense suggestions, and assessing the organization's standpoint in going with informed venture choices. As financial backers progressively look for money producing open doors, an exhaustive comprehension of Wipro's profit venture potential becomes urgent for accomplishing monetary objectives while overseeing risk.

Keywords: Dividends, Stock returns, Financial metrics , Diversification, long term perspective

