

Impact of the Industrialization process on Society

Dr. Chandrakant D.Kamble

Associate Professor, Department of Sociology (H.O.D.)
Vasundhara College, Jule, Solapur, Maharashtra, India

I. INTRODUCTION

Industrialization is the production of large quantities of goods that are suitable for human consumption. Industrialization is the process of starting a new business on a large scale. Industrialization is the process by which a society or state moves from an agricultural economy to an industrial economy. We want to explain how industrialization has changed the socio-economic life of human beings. Let us first explain what industrialization is and how it happened. We will also consider industrialization here as a process related to the process of social transformation.

REFERENCES

- [1]. Kachole. D.D., 'Industrial Sociology', 1998, Kailas prakashan : Aurangabad
- [2]. Nadagonde. Gurunath., ' Sociology,' 2000, Continental Publication: Pune
- [3]. Ahuja. Ram, Indian Social System, 2000. Rawat Publications: Jaipur
- [4]. Agalave. Pradeep, 2002, Indian Social Structure, Nagpur: Sainath Prakashan
- [5]. Agalave. Pradeep, 2002, Indian Social Structure and Problems, Nagpur: Sainath Prakashan.
- [6]. Kamble. Chandrakant, 2015, Literature and Society, Solapur: Think Tank Prakashan
- [7]. Kamble, Chandrakant, 2021, Satyashodhak movement: A stream of change, Solapur: Think Tank Prakashan
- [8]. Kamble, Narayan. 2015, Neo-Social Movement, Aurangabad: Chinmay Prakashan.
- [9]. Kulkarni, PK, 2000, Health and Society, Nagpur: Vidya Books
- [10]. Lokrajya Monthly-2011 Nov., Jan 2015
- [11]. Samajprabodhan Patrika - Sept. 2016